3. Telling your story

We are proud of the people and organisations we support. You are part of a network of community businesses across England and with you we want to build awareness and understanding of what community business can offer.

As one of the community businesses Power to Change supports, we want to help you to communicate the achievements of your community business to those around you, be they media, politicians or the people in your neighbourhood.

This guide shows you how to use your beneficiary logo correctly, how to acknowledge your award publicly and how to refer to Power to Change in your communications. We are grateful for our support from Big Lottery Fund and it's important they are included in our identity too.

If anything is unclear or you have questions about this guide then do get in touch with us. Let us know if you are not the right person in your organisation for communications and marketing so we can keep our contact database up to date.

Thank you.

Director of Communications and Partnerships

1. How to talk about your award

Acknowledging our investment in you

This section provides guidance on how to talk about Power to Change and includes compulsory wording for press releases. This text is updated frequently, so please check www.powertochange.org.uk/support-and-resources/support-for-grantees/ to ensure you have the most up-to-date template.

When can you talk about your award?
We're as excited as you are about announcing your award. But you'll need to wait until all the paperwork is done to talk about it publicly. Once you've signed your offer letter, feel free to spread the good news!

Press releases
If you are issuing a press release that mentions or relates to Power to Change or our grant funding then this needs to be approved by us in advance. We will pull out the stops to do this as quickly as we can but we do ask that you give us at least 48 hours' notice.

'Notes to editors' are normally required in press releases. They don't form part of the main text but are included after the contact details and provide helpful background information.

As well as referring to Power to Change, you must also include the 'Notes to Editors' description of the Big Lottery Fund.

Some helpful definitions

"Power to Change, the organisation set up to grow and support community businesses in England,..."
Please describe us like this in press releases, and use the paragraph entitled 'About Power to Change' in the 'Notes to editors' section.

Please refer to us as 'Power to Change' not 'the Power to Change' unless there is another word attached, for example: 'the Power to Change grant' or 'the Power to Change team'.

Community business
Whilst you will find lots of descriptions and criteria around community business on our website, particularly related to the grant application process, when it comes to talking about community business to the public, we like to keep it as simple as possible.

'A community business is run by and for the local community. It uses its profits to make the local area a better place to live, work and visit. Examples include communities coming together to save local shops from closure; to set up a community hub to provide a place for people to meet and work; or developing a community led housing project to help regenerate a local area.'

Although it's important, a community business is not a proper noun so keep it as 'community business', not 'Community Business', whatever the context.

Notes to editors

About Power to Change
Power to Change is an independent trust, whose funding is used to strengthen community businesses across England.

At a time when many part of the UK face cuts, neglect and social problems, we are using our £150 million endowment from the Big Lottery Fund to help local people come together to take control, and make sure their local areas survive and stay vibrant.

About the Big Lottery Fund
– The Big Lottery Fund supports the aspirations of people who want to make life better for their communities across the UK. We are responsible for giving out 40% of the money raised by the National Lottery and invest over £650 million a year in projects big and small in health, education, environment and charitable purposes.

– Since June 2004 we have awarded over £8 billion to projects that change the lives of millions of people. Every year we fund 13,000 small local projects tackling big social problems like poor mental health and homelessness.

– Since the National Lottery began in 1994, £34 billion has been raised and more than 450,000 grants awarded.

2. How to use your beneficiary logo

A mark of our investment in you

As one of the community businesses we support, you must use our special beneficiary logo to show we have invested in you.

Our grantee logo is made up of two elements:

- Power to Change logo
- Big Lottery Fund beneficiary logo

The whole logo therefore shows both the source of your funding (Power to Change) and how it was raised (through the National Lottery, via the Big Lottery Fund).

You should have received this logo with this document. You can also download it from our Dropbox, as well as black and white versions, and different formats such as .jpg, .png (for online items) and .eps (for printed items such as signs).

Examples of where you could use our logo

- Adverts
- Banners
- Events
- Info boards
- Leaflets/flyers
- Newsletters

- Press releases
- Site boards
- Stationery
- Social media

3. Telling your story

Celebrating you beyond your award

We promote the great work done by community businesses across England by sharing inspiring community business stories like yours that can be picked up and amplified by the media and by organisations that are involved in our cause.

Why community business?

The community business model is not new. Local people have long been rallying together to take control of facilities and services in their area. Now there are more than 7,000 community businesses in England, and are growing faster than charities and small businesses. But the time is now ripe for more people to get involved in community business to address the issues and needs in their local area.

Together with you, we at Power to Change will be building the case for this new economic model in the years to come.

Why now?

One of our objectives as an organisation is to build awareness and increase the involvement of the public in community business across England. We strongly believe that if people are made aware of all the benefits that businesses like yours bring to places and people, then more of them will be ready to become customers, volunteers, suppliers, mentors and trustees. And many will go on to set up community businesses of their own.

Tell us your story

So if you have a great story to tell then please let us know. It could be about your community business in general; it could be about a member of the team or volunteer; or just a funny anecdote that brings to life what you are about. We are interested in all your stories, big and small.

These may be newsworthy enough for local and national press, radio and even TV! We'll help you spot great media opportunities to promote your business.
